

World-class research meets world-class project management

Online Exploratory Symposium Re-Inventing Project Management in Research

04. May - 22. June 2021

Intent

- | Inspire scientists and researchers to apply modern project management methods
- | Present methods with experience reports on their use in research
- | Apply modern project management methods to your own research projects and their challenges

Your Benefit

- | Gain experience with agile project management methods
- | Run your projects more efficiently
- | Optimize the communication within your project team
- | Share your experiences with other researchers

Target Audience

- | Postdocs
- | Principal investigators
- | Junior professors
- | Researchers and scientists who want to gain an insight into modern project management methods and their application in research projects

All lectures and exercises will be held in english.

Re-Inventing Project Management in Research

After last year's successful event at Helmholtz Center Munich with 55 researchers and scientists as participants, the symposium will take place as an online event in 2021. This year we have again 10 top-class speakers. The participants will learn important modules of modern project management (Design Thinking, Project Canvas, Lean Startup, Scrum, Kanban, Stakeholder Management) in the context of research projects, apply them to their own projects and reflect on their experiences.
